If the town should cease to exist how would it effect the value of farm land and all other property?

A COMMUNITY CAN PROSPER ONLY BY THE SUPPORT OF ITS PEOPLE

FORTY-SECOND YEAR NO. 29

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1919

PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR

COMPLIMENT PAID O. E. BRADFUTE IN O. S. JOURNAL.

Mary E. Lee, of Westerville, O., a press writer of considerable note pays a fine compliment to O. E. Bradfute in a recent communication to the Ohio State Journal as follows:

"The press reports that Ohio State Grange has called a convention of farmers' organizations and labor unions to oppose classification of property for purposes of taxation.

It is no new thing for this group of grangers to oppose classification and there are now in control of the Grange. I have attended 20 annual sessions of State Grange and while the question has been up for discussion, I have no recollection of its being debated at home time at any one session. This profound and intricate question deserves debate and clear discussion. Assertions were many the usual ones being that great wealth was trying to lay the burden of taxation on farmers and that single tax was the ultimate aim of classification.

There is a divided sentiment in the Grange and among farmers, but the State Grange adopted a resolution of opposition. We have a form of classification now. Several years ago public bonds were exempted and last year mortgages were put in a separate class. So far what classification we have has come by the way of exemptions. Whenever a class of property gets enough supporters to put it in a favored class it goes before the people and gets off in a class by itself. This, of course, places a heavier load on the more unfortunate classes of property that are widely diffused to get popular support at the polls. What advocates of classification want is not exemption of favored classes of property but an adjustment of the burdens of taxation that they may be as equally distributed as possible.

State Grange confronts a different proposition this year than formerly. It once was that the Grange was looked to as the one authentic source of information on farm viewpoint and its domination in agricultural affairs was unquestioned. But in time farmers began coming to Columbus, not as delegates at the expense of an organization and therefore practically controlled by the men in office. They paid their own expenses and were an upstanding lot who thought clearly and spoke directly. Mutterings of the need of another farm organization were heard. Some efforts were made at organization, but as long as the Grange was so tremendously powerful they did "abandon." With the advent of the county agent supported largely by public funds same the farm bureau. It was a Napoleonic stroke of these forces supported by public funds to have the supporting organization in the hands of actual farmers. It was wisdom incomparable with any shown in recent years of organization movements to place at the head of the State Federation of Bureaus that princely figure in agriculture, O. E. Bradfute of Xenia, O. College bred wealthy, of imposing appearance, a trained thinker, a scholarly speaker, Mr. Bradfute commends himself to any conference or audience. He would grace his country if sent to the Court of St. James. He is a tower of strength where strength is needed and will yet more be needed before the organization game is over and the spokesmanship of agriculture finally established.

Then the very powerful dairymen's organization, similar in character to the fruit growers' organization of California are growing over the state. Composed of hard headed business farmers who will not tolerate the use of the organization to gain political glory or personal advantage, these men are not awayed by the appeals usually made to farmers. These are the active and influential men in agriculture who ask of a speaker before their bodies, "Is that true? Why do you leave your business to come to us unless you are well sustained with argument? Have you made such a financial success in life, that you are a safe advisor on purely fiscal affairs?"

The other organizations will not be apt to take any official part in the discussion, but it is hardly within the bounds of reason that so many substantial, influential men of affairs would meet frequently without discussing quietly among themselves so profound a question as taxation. It is equally improbable that they will be awayed by the appeals but that are usually made to influence the farm vote.

While farmers are receiving the lowest wage for their labor and the smallest profit on their investment of any other industry, still they are getting more money than before. There are farmers in every community of upstanding character and clear thinking who will have to have more than assertions to prejudice them and it is to this class of clear thinking men that advocates of classification must make their appeal. The things about "unlimited funds at disposal of advocates of classification" will have a tendency to create respect for a proposition that has the merit to win the support of successful men."

Here Is a Company That Looks Well And That Sings as Well as It Looks

You'll want to be in your seat on the afternoon of the opening day or you will miss one of the best programs of Chautauqua. The Chautauqua does not wait until the second or third day before the good things appear; the program is good all the way through and some of the very best things are put on the first day to get you so interested you will tell your friends for unless you bring them, it isn't possible to make the Chautauqua self-supporting.

The Hampton Court Singers present a program of unusual music—music seldom heard—in an unusual way. For a part of the program they appear in the quaint costumes of the days of Queen Elizabeth just as the ladies and gentlemen presented themselves at court at Hampton Castle. And many of the songs are songs that were sung to Queen Elizabeth—folk songs of old merrie England, songs that we all love to hear.

These five fine folks are not only good singers but actors as well. There is much fun in the program and perhaps the most serious sketch they present is "The Musical Sketch." In the evening they will present some of their work as a prelude to the dramatic "The Grist of the Golden Age." Again, we say, be in your seat for the first program; then tell all your friends how fine it all is. You'll be helping them as well as the Chautauqua.

STORM DOES SOME DAMAGE; HEAVY RAIN FALL.

This section was visited by a very heavy rain storm accompanied by considerable lightning, last Saturday night and Sabbath morning. Farmers were most concerned as to how the wheat would stand such a rain but some threshing was resumed Tuesday afternoon when a still harder rain fell that will put an end to threshing until Saturday and probably longer.

Lightning struck the barn on the James M. Barber farm, owned by J. C. Barber, early Sabbath morning. The building was upon a mass of flames as fourteen loads of new hay had been moved away a few days before. There was no live stock and only a few farm implements were lost. Mr. Barber states that his insurance will fully cover the value of the barn as it was about 80 years old and badly in need of repair. He may erect a new barn next spring in a new location. This is the second time the barn has been struck by lightning and several trees close by have also been hit in recent years.

James Duncan has the land rented and is part looser on the hay which was not insured.

MYRTLE JENKINS DEAD.

Mrs. Myrtle Jenkins, widow of Augustus Jenkins, died at the District Tuberculosis hospital in Springfield early Sabbath morning. The deceased had the flu in the early fall and never recovered, tuberculosis following. The deceased was the daughter of William and Amanda Ford and she was born in this place March 28, 1872, being 30 years of age. She is survived by three children, Omer, of Brookville, Lawrence and Louise of Greenville. She leaves a sister, Mrs. B. H. Reed of Greenville, and Harvey Ford of Dayton.

The body was brought to the home of B. H. McFarland, and the services conducted from there Tuesday afternoon, burial taking place at the North cemetery.

IMPATIENTLY WAIT THE GREAT NEW CIRCUS.

"Circus Day," the big holiday for which young and old impatiently wait at this particular season promises to eclipse all other events of the calendar year at Dayton, Friday, July 25. It would seem as though everybody in this locality were planning to attend. The very name of the great new circus—Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined—has been sufficient to arouse far more interest than has ever before been displayed for any amusement enterprise. And the word from Ringling Bros., who are the directors of this gigantic super-circus, is to the effect that all those who attend the performances will witness the greatest program ever presented in America. This is likewise true of the mammoth street parade, which will positively take place showday morning, the mammoth menagerie and all else connected with this biggest of all amusement institutions. There will be scores upon scores of the cleverest dumb actors. A gorgeous and costumed pageant, of the stupendous size on the program. Also many groups of beautiful horses in jeweled trappings. The army of clowns exceed all past records for fun and numbers. All contribute to the biggest circus in history.

EVERYTHING TO BE MOVED BY AUGUST FIRST.

Now that the Centenary in Columbus is over there are some interesting facts in connection with this exposition.

Reports are that the Centenary will prove a financial success when the books are balanced.

All exhibits and paintings are being carefully packed and will be stored for use in some other city.

The pageant, "The Wayfarer," will be put on in New York City in October.

The great pipe organ used in the collection gets to Evansville, Ind., and brought $30,000. It was built expressly for the exposition.

The lumber used in building the motion picture across from the race track cost $8,000 and has been salvaged to a local contractor.

The management promises to have the grounds cleaned up by August 1.

GREENE COUNTY FARM BUREAU

Greene County Farm Bureau is a collection of all agricultural interests of that county. Greene has the reputation of being the best live stock county in Ohio. Live stock men from different townships selected men to be in the Farm Bureau Executive Committee. The Grangers did the same thing. County fair county schools, business men, fruit growers, all have their say in the work of this useful organization. This bureau expects to establish a Farm Loan Association so that Greene County, can borrow money from the Federal Land Bank in Louisville, Kentucky, at low interest and long time—Macadam Service.

WAGON AND WHEAT BURN.

A wagon and load of wheat were burned Friday on the O. L. Smith farm while threshing. It is supposed that sparks from the engine fell on the load which had been standing near the engine. The fire had a good start when discovered and some of the burning sheaves were thrown to the ground. This ignited the stubble and straw and soon the fire was about the separator and straw pile. All hands fought the fire out before any great damage was done. The wagon was drawn into the orchard and burned as it was impossible to get the wheat off of it.

WILL CALL ON YOU TUESDAY.

RIVER FISH ARE DEAD.

It is said that hundreds of fish were found dead in the river below Alpha, Monday, the gills being closed with refuse that is said to come from the Hagar Straw Board & Paper Co. The company keeps a watchman at the reservoir, Ben Bosse of Clifton.

RUNNING A NEWSPAPER.

Running a newspaper is like sitting down to a meal. None of us go to the table and find everything just to our liking. If there is something that does not suit you, let it alone. There are some things on the table many times we do not like but we don't fall out with the cook nor do we quit eating. Trying to please everyone all the time cannot be done.

House-owners know the annoyance and expense of continually paying out money for repair bills, but by using Hanna's Green Seal Paint on their property occasionally, these bills can be done away with to a large extent. Any surface, if left to itself and not properly painted, is bound to decay sooner or later, whereas a coat or two of paint at reasonable intervals will prepare it to withstand all the ravages of time and wet weather.

A PETTY GRAFT.

We see that Congress has reestablished the free seed graft. Graft is the only name we can give it.

The congressmen have found that packages of seeds, sent to the thousand town and city voters on their selected list, are the cheapest advertising than can secure.

It is easier to let Uncle Sam buy a lot of cheap seeds in Europe whence our seeds for this distribution have always come, wad them in a bag envelope, and drop them by the ton in the mail for Uncle Sam to carry free of charge to a thousand office workers, who will never plant a grain of them, than it is to write a letter telling constituents what congress has done for them; and decidedly less embarrassing.

Through the years we have hopelessly planted the seeds sent by members of Congress.

We have planted Democratic seeds and Republican seeds; safe and sane seeds, pacifist seeds and militaristic seeds, and free silver seeds, and gold standard seeds, and high tariff seed, and free trade seeds, and in just one particular did all these seeds agree; they uniformly, without hesitation, or demur, stayed right where they were put.

If the congressmen imagine that the farmers of the country are still the farmers of the olden days, that accept any sort of political plavver as full payment for their votes, they will be enlightened as rapidly as election time comes around. The farmer today is really awake.

A MIDSUMMER'S TALE.

It used to be an old-time joke that some people were fond of the newspapers that they even read the advertisements. That might have been a humorous remark years ago. At that period some merchants would run an advertisement for a whole year unchanged. Clothing dealers would start in advertising January first with a notice of overcoats for sale, and keep it running in July.

Today people read the advertisements as a matter of business. The women read it just as a farmer reads wheat and pork prices or as a banker reads the financial reports. They thereby get ideas as to how they can save on household expenses. Probably a majority of the women turn first to the advertising of their favorite merchants, and then read the news later.

The men also read the advertising carefully. Even if they have no business enterprise of their own, they are interested in the advertising as a reflection of the business life of the town and community.

Hence it is perhaps unnecessary to suggest to our readers that the advertising columns are worthy of the most careful attention. They are giving that attention to these notices. There is no time when advertising is worth such careful attention as midsummer. All kinds of merchants have the proposition before them of cleaning out their stocks before cool weather comes on. That requires publicity. The goods will not move themselves. The public must be told about them and in detail.

The story of what is happening in the stores will be found in the advertising columns of this paper. Most of the readers are seeing it, and it will repay their scrutiny.

Summer vacations are now in order.

The stride of the suffragists does not seem to be hindered by the use of the narrow skirt.

That newspaper story about President Wilson coming home with a ship load of brides does not mean that he has joined the Mormon church.

A physician says that the fewer clothes people wear, the longer they will live. Well, the woman that wears the shadow skirt evidently has a long lease on life.

After the Kaiser, perhaps Willard is the most unpopular man today. But no one knows that he is worrying what people think about him. He has the $100,000 to be added to his nest egg of $250,000. Jess told the world that no one would ever have to give a benefit for him.

The scarcity of teachers in the public schools is becoming alarming not only in Ohio but in all sections of the country. The situation is easily explained. When manual labor received a price greater than that paid for a profession, the profession will suffer every time. We are glad to see the salaries of teachers being increased everywhere. You cannot expect to have good teachers on poor salaries. A good teacher in the public schools is worth more than some other things the public orders at the tax payers expense.

A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY.

Dr. McChesney has just succeeded in getting an arrangement with Ohio State University, by which students who complete two years in agriculture in Cedarville College will be able to go to Ohio State University and complete the course there in two more years and receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture from the O. S. U. This will mean a saving of time and expense to any who wish to take advantage of the opportunity. Moreover it gives the chance to get the work in smaller classes and to be at home the first two years. More of our young people than usual ought to take advantage of this splendid opportunity.

The course in Cedarville will be for the first two years:

English, 4 hrs., Botany, 8 hrs., Biology, 6 hrs., Geology, 6 hrs., Chemistry, 8 hrs., Mathematics and Physics, 6 hrs., Modern Language 8 hrs., American History or Economics, 6 hrs., Other college work 16 hrs.

The course in the O. S. U. for the last two years will be:

Chemistry, 8 hrs., Organic chemistry, 4 hrs., Biology or Botany, 6 or 8 hrs., Modern Language, 12 or 16 hrs., Psychology, 6 hrs., Economics, 6 hrs., English, 4 hrs., Other college work 13 to 15 hours.

If you contemplate a course in agriculture you should see the president of Cedarville College and arrange for your work.

The outlook for an increased attendance in Cedarville College this fall was never better. The college opens Sept. 10 at 9:30 A. M. The opening address will be given by Rev. C. P. Pfundt, pastor of the Second U. P. church of Xenia.

RECESSED MEETING.

Council held a recessed meeting last Thursday evening at which time the new automobile ordinance was passed that complies with the state law that recently went into effect. It can be found in this issue.

Daily Care of Plants.

Window plants collect dust easily and so should be carefully dusted, if necessary, before watering so that they will get the benefit of the water and look really green and healthy. A palm, begonia or any woody plant may be dusted with a very soft bristle brush. The roots of plants must be thoroughly soaked. All plants do better if repotted once a year so as to allow any necessary root expansion. Ferns must often be divided to prevent crowding. No plant should be placed in a crowded position in a room either against another plant or furniture if it is to look and do well. Neither must it be set in a place where it will get even the slightest knocking, for ferns especially have delicate fronds that are sensitive to a mere touch.

Marriage in Greenland.

Courtship and marriage customs among the Greenlanders were in early times simple and unceremonious. We are told that when a lovelorn youth made up his mind as to the girl he wanted to adorn, and be useful in, he but of ice or snow he went to her house, seized her by the hair or wherever he could secure a good grip on her, and dragged her to his own domain, where she was expected to stay without any further marriage ceremony. If an affluent bridegroom would perhaps soothe her incensed feelings by presenting her with a new lamp.

Good Reason.

"When a man hasn't a good reason for doing a thing, he has one very good reason for letting it alone," said Sir Walter Scott. The deed without a good reason back of it is like a house without a foundation—it is not wise in its beginning, or of much value when completed.

THE AMERICAN GIRLS' SEXTETTE
Who Will Entertain With Vocal and Instrumental Music at Chautauqua

The Man Who Entertained and Inspired More Soldiers Than Any Other Man in The World

To Lecture at Chautauqua—A Humorist of National Fame

Nearly twenty years ago the then governor of Pennsylvania, Governor Pennypacker, heard a young man speak at a banquet of noted business men in Philadelphia. These men who have ample opportunity to see and hear the best the world affords were convulsed with laughter for more than an hour—some of them laughing so hard that they were compelled to leave the room. When the Governor arose to address the audience, he referred to the previous speaker as "the funniest man since Bill Nye."

"KILL THE BLUES" COPE ADDRESSING SHIP BUILDERS

That young man was Herbert Leon Cope—he looked like a school-boy then; he doesn't look very old now for his good humor has carried him through many trials and troubles. His rise as a Lyceum and Chautauqua entertainer was meteoric—he was always a star. Now with twenty years of world experience behind him, he is in his prime as a lecturer and entertainer who gives a humorous turn to the most serious things of life. There is a serious purpose back of all his humor but that doesn't make it any the less humorous. Here is a speaker who rivals Irvin Cobb for genuine American humor that flows spontaneously and with originality. Cope is never commonplace.

For fourteen months he spoke to an average of three audiences a day; sometimes to as many as six audiences a day—this usually on Sunday. This was in our great cantonments and military and marine camps all over this country. No doubt there are boys in this town who heard him; if so, they will remember that he was nicknamed "Kill-the-Blues" Cope and was welcomed everywhere.

ENTERTAINERS FROM THE TRENCHES

These Boys Can Entertain and Sing as Well as Fight
They Have Done Both in France—You'll Shout With Delight

If these four young men were not wearing the khaki, they would be filling the same place on our Chautauqua program for they are singers and entertainers first and soldiers afterwards. They were singers and entertainers before their country called; upon their return they were given their old places back for it is a policy of the Civil-Club Chautauqua Management to give preference to the boys who have served their country—a policy deserving praise and emulation.

In regulation evening dress suits these four boys would entertain you royally but it is believed that they should be allowed to wear their khaki and credentials because they are entitled to them and because everyone really wants to hear the Sammy songs sung by real honest-to-goodness Sammy boys. To a wealth of harmony they add the doughboy pep and punch in their two programs the closing day.

Let Truth Dictate.
Critics, like the rest of mankind, are very frequently misled by interest. It has been advanced by Addison as one of the characteristics of a true critic, that he points out beauties rather than faults. But it is rather natural to a man of learning and genius to apply himself chiefly to the study of writers who have most beauties than faults to be displayed; for the duty of criticism is neither to depreciate, nor dignity by partial representations, but to hold out the light of reason, whatever it may discover; and to promulgate the determinations of truth, whatever she shall dictate.—Samuel Johnson, in the Rambler.

Got Aristocratic Convicts.
Virginia was the only American colony which ever received British convicts, and very few were ever sent there. Most of those sent were political prisoners, and the aristocratic element predominated. In 1873 parliament forbade the transportation of convicts to English colonies in America.

At Failure's Climax
By S. B. HACKLEY

When Maxon Elliot stepped out on the platform to make his ringing commencement speech and Jessamine Farrar felt the scrutiny of many pairs of eyes, friendly, curious, sympathetic, she held her head high. Who wouldn't be proud to be the sweetheart of "brilliant promise?"

He wasn't the valedictorian. That condescended, red-haired Walton Durrett was that, but Maxon's rank was high, and with his brown hair and his clear, friendly eyes, was he not good to look at?

That evening after young Elliot had gone out with Judge Farrar's eldest daughter, his honor sat a long time in silent thought. For nearly three years Maxon Elliot had been Jessamine's humble worshiper, and Durrett, the self-confident valedictorian, had been her devoted admirer.

Durrett was one whom one would naturally expect to do things, and Elliot was a young man of brilliant promise. The judge's preference inclined to the latter, but he or any other would have to "make good" before he'd give his little girl to him.

The judge sighed thankfully. Jessamine would always listen to "Father." A little later when she shyly suggested that at the end of Max's first school year in Marion (he'd been given the principalship of Marion's academy), there would be a wedding, the judge shook his head.

A year is too short, little girl. Let him prove himself.

Jessamine smiled certainly. "Two years if you think best, papa—but when Max is a university president, we'll laugh about our caution, won't we?"

The Marion school board, at the end of the year, very quietly asked Professor Elliot to resign. It was not that he was not liked—his thoughtful consideration, his gentle courteous manner, made friends, but somehow he had failed as the school's principal.

That summer, through the recommendation of a relative, Elliot secured the editorship of the local paper in the large town of Hamilton. For a year he wrote brilliant editorials, and struggled valiantly to build up the circulation of the paper, but at the end of the year the owner asked another man to take the editorship.

Then when Jessamine, with her sister and parents, sailed for three years of foreign travel, Max understood that he was free.

When the three years were at an end and he heard the Farrars were coming home, he managed somehow to scrape together enough for a ticket to New York.

His was the first face that Jessamine recognized on the pier. For an instant her heart bounded and despite the old-world wisdom she had gained, she had to fight a foolish impulse to lay her head on the shabby decency of his serge coat and tell him, among other things, that failure in business didn't matter.

But Fulton Newholdt, who for six months had followed in their wake, was looking on and presently Elliot was forced to step aside to make way for their other friends.

"Strange that Maxon Elliot should have happened to be in New York the very day that we landed," the judge remarked.

Jessamine said nothing. She knew it hadn't just happened. Max had traveled those 600 miles just for a sight of her! Well, he'd had it, and she—

The day after they reached her home Newholdt, who was their guest, asked her to marry him.

Instead of saying, "Yes, please," as she had contemplated, and as she knew would delight her father and mother, she found herself saying very earnestly, "No, thank you."

It was four years before she saw Max again, and it was at the county fair.

"I've been out West," he told her, "sort of knocking about, but I'm doing some bookkeeping work for my cousin now, at the mill. His regular man had to stop awhile because of ill health."

He spoke cheerfully, but his mouth wore a subdued, conquered expression that was pathetic.

"Rob keeps me very busy but I begged off today to run down here on the chance of seeing some of my old college friends," he remarked; but Jessamine looked into his wistful eyes and translated his words: "On the chance of seeing you, dear, on the chance of seeing you!"

Just then the red-haired valedictorian, now a successful lawyer and politician, stopped to speak to Jessamine.

"Glad about Elliot's being a disappointment," he remarked when Maxon had taken himself off. "All vision and no practicality. The wonder is he hasn't married and dragged some woman down. His kid generally goes around with a girl who knows, Fair Lady."

The next year Maxon Elliot at the fair told Jessamine he'd got the place as postmaster at Harper several months before. "So," he added, "maybe I can spare the money to run over and see Durrett, inaugurated governor in December. His election's a sure thing. Will you be there?" he ended, a trifle wistfully.

"I—I've promised—I think so!" she answered.

Max understood her embarrassment, and the look of defeat that had temporarily raised itself settled back over his face.

In November, Durrett was elected governor of the state. Judge and Mrs. Farrar prepared to give their daughter a very handsome wedding.

Maxon Elliot to be tried by the United States court for fraud in the Harper postoffice? These words confronted Jessamine one day when she picked up the paper.

"Too bad a perfectly innocent fellow gets himself in a place to be technically guilty of crime, and liable to the penitentiary," her cousin, Will Payne, remarked, looking over her shoulder at her startled cry. "I've heard about it. Seems a discharged clerk's twisted some papers some way, so the blame falls on the postmaster."

Max Elliot's been adjudged guilty, and they're going to send him to prison, Jessy. Payne told her a few days later, "unless the President pardons him." Seems his friends are getting up a petition.

Jessamine flew to her room.

"A lady wishes you to call to see her at once, sis," a messenger boy said to Maxon Elliot, two weeks afterward, when he was going to his room at the hotel, after a satisfactory interview with the nation's chief executive.

When he went to the address given a figure in a blue traveling suit ran across the room, and then Jessamine Farrar was clinging to him, crying softly, "Oh, Max!—Max, dear!"

"Why, Jessy—Jessy!" Astonishment wrapped him. "What is the matter?"

"Oh, Max, I want you!" she sobbed; "I want you!"

Maxon's heart racing with the wild happiness of her slight, against it, he kissed her, and in spite of himself, for an instant, his arms went about her and held her tight; then he remembered.

"You are going to marry Governor Durrett, Jessy?"

"I'm not going to marry Walton Durrett—unless—unless you don't want me, Max!"

"But I—!" poor Max stammered.

"I'm a failure—I'm disgraced—I'd be in prison but for the president's kindness! Surely, Jessy, you don't understand?"

"I do!" she interrupted. "It's taken this to tell me where my heart's been all these years! If they'd sent you to prison, and you'd have let me, I would have married you on the prison steps! Kiss me, Max!"

But she was not listening. "Oh, Max!" she smiled, "I'm so glad grandmother left me her home and so much of her money. It's invested safely—we can live on the income. You—you don't have to try to make money—you can study and write—and—make me happy! If you won't go with me and hunt up a minister, I'll go home and marry the governor and live miserably ever after."

And Max went.

World's Work. This will depend the purpose which they had in when the funds were accumulated on the conditions that will suit the investment. If one is laid up, is he not really a trustee those savings for the old person he to be? if he is saving for his family, is it not the same? But if the money is being accumulated with the view of taking advantage of a business opportunity, it is different. Or if one is in close touch with conditions in a certain business, he might be justified in taking risks in that field which would be improper for one ignorant of conditions to take. The degree of risk that one is justified in taking must be largely decided by the investor himself, although others of more experience or training might help. It is this first point that should be decided.

How Lloyd George Keeps Fit.
Few men have ever had to bear such a heavy burden as the prime minister has had to carry during the last three months. A general election, a peace conference and industrial trouble—each would have meant an epoch in the pre-war life of a premier. How does Lloyd George manage to keep so cheery and fit? An interesting light on this point is thrown by the fact that recently Mr. Lloyd George has several times strolled into a room occupied by his staff and asked if the civil secretaries had any amusing novel there. He has picked up some light literature and gone off to read it quietly for half an hour or so as a distraction from more serious affairs.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Only Real Failure.
Because a fellow has failed once or twice, or a dozen times, you don't want to set him down as a failure till he's dead or loses his courage—and that's the same thing—George H. Lorimer.

It Can Be Done.
Any fool can make a woman talk, but it takes a very clever man to make her listen.—Boston Transcript.

Where is the Ocean Deepest?
A most peculiar fact about the oceans of the world is that the largest depressions are to be found near the coast lines. The three largest of these are all in the Pacific, two of them being near island coast lines. The Swire deep, just off the Philippines, measures no less than 35,000 feet from the surface of the ocean to the bottom. This is just 3,000 feet deeper than Mt. Everest, in Asia, is high. The Aldridge deep, in the South Pacific, ranks next to this, being nearly 31,000 feet deep. The third is the Tuscara deep, near Japan, which soundings indicate to be 27,000 feet in depth. This would then make the bottom of the Tuscara deep more than two and three-eighths miles below the average level of the bottom of the ocean.—Popular Science Monthly.

Below Zero at Equator.
It is colder at the equator than at the north pole, according to a professor, who claims he has proved this strange statement by means of balloon ascensions. It is warmer at the North pole, if you go high enough, he says. Balloons with recording instruments attached were sent up to altitudes of 10 to 12 miles. In the tropics the temperature at this height was 145 degrees below zero, while in middle Europe and farther north at the same height, the temperature only recorded 50 to 85 degrees below zero. Another curious fact noted was that the temperature diminishes as the height increases. The balloon ascensions are said to have shown that the coldest temperature is reached at heights of six to seven miles.

Florence suffered an attack of the flu last winter and not having previously been in good health was left weak in body and of late had suffered fainting spells. There was no one near at the time other than the little daughter of Raymond Matthews who gave the alarm. When assistance arrived life was extinct and it is supposed she suffered one of the fainting spells and fell into the water which under ordinary circumstances would not drown anyone. The deceased was born in this township and attended the schools here until the removal of her parents a few years ago. She was a girl who had many friends and the sad news of her death will be quite a shock to them as well as to her parents. Her loss will be deeply mourned by her parents and several brothers and sisters. The funeral will be held from her late home Friday afternoon, burial taking place at Massies Creek cemetery.

LESSON FOR JULY 20

THE LORD'S SUPPER.

LESSON TEXTS.—Mat. 26:26-30; I Cor. 11:23-26.

GOLDEN TEXT.—For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.—I Cor. 11:26.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL.—Mark 14:22-26; Luke 22:14-20; I Cor. 10:14-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—Remembering Jesus (Luke 22:19).

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC.—The meaning of the Lord's Supper.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC.—Communion with Christ and with one another.

1. The Institution of the Lord's Supper (Matt. 26:26; I Cor. 11:23).

1. Time: It was on the night of the betrayal of Jesus, just after the betrayer had been announced.

2. The circumstances: In connection with the eating of the Passover. At the command of Jesus the disciples made ready the Passover, and while they were eating, Jesus took bread, blessed it and gave it to the disciples.

3. Elements: (1) The bread. This symbolized the common bread of the Passover feast. (2) The cup. This cup consisted of the fruit of the vine.

11. The Significance of the Lord's Supper (Matt. 26:26-28; I Cor. 11:24-26).

Jesus took natural and literal elements and made them to be symbols of his own body and blood. Just as our bread and drink are assimilated into brain and brawn, becoming an integral part of our body, so by means of these symbols the communicant partakes of Christ. He becomes a part of us and we are in him. It is both a memorial and a prophecy.

1. A memorial of the Lord (Luke 22:19). When he went away he left the bread and the cup for the disciples by which to remember him. Those who love him will desire to keep sacred this memorial.

2. To show the Lord's sacrificial death (I Cor. 11:26). He did not die as a hero or as an example of unselfish devotion, but as a substitutionary ransom. On the cross he made expiation for our sins.

3. It is a guaranty that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25). When the believer partakes of these elements his faith is confirmed. "It is a signet of the Son of God attached to redemption."

4. Through them the believer received Christ (I Cor. 10:16). He thereby participates in the body and blood of Christ, becoming a member of his body. Christ liveth in the believer (Gal. 2:20). The Holy Spirit communicates the life of Christ to believers, making them one body, joined together (Eph. 4:16). This union is illustrated by the figure of the human organism (I Cor. 12:12-27); the vine and branches (John 15:1-8); the husband and wife (Eph. 5:25, 26); we are one bread and one body (I Cor. 10:17).

5. A forward look to a completed redemption (I Cor. 10:26). When faith is exercised in Christ, redemption begins, and its completion will take place at the coming of Jesus Christ (I Thess. 4:16, 17). The bread and the cup constitute the keepsake of the Lord until he returns. These elements possess an immense psychological value both as a memorial and a prospect.

III. Qualifications for Participation in the Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:27-34).

1. A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking "unworthily" does not refer to the demerit of the communicant, but to the failure of the communicant to grasp its meaning and importance. Therefore, to thoughtlessly engage in this service is to do it "unworthily." Only a regenerated person can discern the Lord's body (v. 29, cf. 2:14). Faith in the integrity of Christ's person and work is essential. Anyone who does not believe in the absolute deity of Christ and his vicarious atonement is an unworthy communicant.

2. Church membership (I Cor. 11:18-22). The Lord's body is the church which is composed of regenerated men and women, united to Jesus Christ as head and to each other as members of that body by the Holy Spirit.

3. Orderly walk. The disorderly should be debarred from the Lord's table, examples of which are the following: (1) Immoral conduct (I Cor. 5:1-13). It is perilous to the individual who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (v. 30). Sickness and death are oftentimes visited upon such. This explains why some are mysteriously taken away in death. (2) Heresy (Titus 2:10; John 4:2, 3). (3) Schismatics (Rom. 16:17). Those who are causing divisions in the church should be debarred.

Our habitual thoughts and actions determine our characters and they are made moment by moment. If at the center we are stayed on God the circumstances must be right—Samuel Fallows.

These lectures have created tremendous interest—they have been a great force for public good. Numerous requests have come to us to have Professor Munter give us a return engagement. We are using this means to tell you of his coming.

By simply pulling the belt any figure is transformed into slender, graceful lines. After thirty days the body remains permanently perfect.

Any woman can be made physically perfect with a corset that is so comfortable to wear that you do not realize that you have one on.

Prof. Munter is the inventor of the famous NULIFE shoulder brace and corset, that is now being worn by millions of men, women and children throughout the world, who are living testimonials of the benefits of NULIFE Corsets.

No matter what your figure is, no matter what corset you are wearing, it will be of the greatest interest to you to see and to know that at least a corset has been created that will give you a most beautiful figure with perfect comfort.

An Extra Force of Corsetieres To assist in service giving.

The "NULIFE" Corset is self-lacing, hip-reducing, back-resting and abdomen-supporting, and you can wear it with solid comfort from the moment you put it on.

The NULIFE Corset has a back resting feature no other corset has, compels deep breathing with the entire lungs all the time, reduces the abdomen and hips without any pressure, and once you put it on you will realize for yourself why the NULIFE Corset has been the rage of Europe, and why we feel proud to present it to the people of the Miami Valley.

The "NULIFE" Corset fits the body snugly without binding, gives proper back rest and style with comfort. The principle on which the "NULIFE" Corset is built corrects the corset errors of centuries, and removes the annoyances which up to this time have been the complaint of women from all over the world.

Six different styles in voiles or batiste. Pretty lace or embroidery trimming or colored stitching trimming. Sizes 36 to 46 on sale Monday, July 21, at 79c.

600 Blouses on Sale at $1.29

Nine different styles, in voiles or batiste. Deserving of especial mention are the blue and white, rose and white and tan and white checked voiles with white organdie collars and cuffs—there are not many of these, so you will necessarily have to make early selection.
